Not illustrated. 1807 Excerpt: .manifest the distance of the savage from the forest beasts which surround him; and it is thro the medium of these, that human nature is able to emerge from a rude and savage state to the highest degree of culture and civilization; is able to advance from the simple supply of its necessities to the enjoyment of innumerable comforts, elegancies and luxuries; from ignorance to a degree of knowledge which approximates man to a superior class of beings. It is through the inventive faculties that the social principle in man enjoys the advantages of sociality. By the intercommunication of ideas, ignorant mortals acquire degrees of knowledge that are an astonishment to themselves; and by their combined efforts, weak mortals contrive and execute plans, the importance and magnitude of which almost exceed belief. Mountains are levelled into plains; barren wastes rendered productive; unhealthy climes become salubrious; nutrition is varied and augmented to keep pace with increasing population; vessels are constructed to unite distant nations; languages are formed to express our multiplied ideas; and symbols invented by which to communicate them to the remotest distance, and hand them down to the latest posterity! Human faculties have studied the vital mechanism of the human frame; the laws by which it is governed and preserved. They enable us to discover the noxious or salutary properties of surrounding bodies; to escape the former, and appropriate the latter. Human faculties command the elements. They render the raging fire subservient to our...
