Now you make me feel, all of a sudden, like an old grey-headed wiseacre. The fire, clasping the new log in its little red tentacles, flashed up as it caught a great rough piece of loose bark, and danced gaily in her mirror, which she was still twisting nervously. Only this. It is best to speak plainly. Do you think it--wise for a young man to marry a woman who--who is a widow? He is so young, you see, younger than you in some ways This was true, but it was astounding to Tommy that she should know it. Yes? he said, as she paused. And--I am nearly four years older than he. And I have been--sorrowful. Sometimes I think, she went on firmly, that he should marry some--something as young as himself. Tommy, now quite at home in his new rôle, shook his head gravely. Dear Mignonette Lady, --that is my name for you, I hope you don't mind?--no man is ever too young or too--I don't know how to express it, but I quite understand what you mean, --for a woman of your age. And if--if--you care for him, as I hope Yes? As you hope? She rose and going to the fire put her small grey-shod foot on the fender and stood with her face turned away from him. She looked so young, so perturbed, so lonely, that every chivalrous fibre, and...
