This whole group, through style, verse movement, and disorganization of stanza, reveals interesting affiliations with the so-called Co, and with certain plays of W. In Y VIII the stanza is equivalent to the pedes of IX. It would be nothing surprising if an author who was experimenting with the cauda of his favorite stanza should try the experiment of dropping it altogether. The York cycle, however, contains another play in this double quatrain measure, play XXXIX, for the second stanza of which the following scheme can be formed--This scheme is very different from that of XXVI. The verse movement and alliteration agree well with those of VIII and IX, but the language seems of a later date. It is well to remember that this was a favorite stanza for the fouraccent Verse that sprang from the iambic tetrameter of the Latin, and was widely...
